Tropic Air Launches TTI's Zenith Passenger System to Support Business Growth

Tropic Air, The Airline of Belize has launched the TTI (Travel Technology Interactive) Zenith PSS (Passenger Service System), to manage all core airline business functions, Inventory, Fares, Sales and Departure Control, the system went 'live' in November. Through Zenith, Tropic Air has selected to distribute its flights via GDS' (Global Distribution Systems), Traveport, Amadeus and Sabre.

The recent 'discovery' of Belize as a tourist destination has boosted international traffic to the country. "We have seen strong growth in our connecting traffic, boosting our revenues by an average of 8-10% per year" says Chief Executive Steven Schulte. He continued, "Our regional operations continue to grow and we will be launching flights to Chetumal, our third destination in Mexico and, our sixth international route, on Monday January 16th".

Schulte went on to say, "the increase in international flights into the market last year by the inbound international airlines has had a very positive effect on our connecting traffic. The Zenith passenger management system will allow us to enter Codeshare and Interline agreements with Airline partners, to further boost traffic and provide better service to our customers".

"We welcome Tropic Air to our growing list of Zenith customers globally and we are very happy to be working with them. The Tropic Air team has been delightful to work with and we are eager to support the growth of the Tropic Air business through their launch of Codeshare agreements", said Grégoire Echalié, CEO, TTI (Travel Technology Interactive).
